

Fathers Building Futures (FBF) supports a mission “to ensure parents experiencing barriers from incarceration have the best opportunity for stability; Emotionally, Socially and Financially”.

Since 2012, Fathers Building Futures has been dedicated to supporting NM fathers returning home from prison. We ensure that they are ready and confident to not only return home to their families but also ensuring these men will be job ready to return to New Mexico’s work force. As an organizational outcome FBF fathers strive to become providers for their families, taxpayers, homeowners and contributing members of society.

FBF is not a court mandated program. The Fathers that come through our doors are here because they want to change. Participating in our eight (8) month program including life skills/ parenting coaching, financial literacy training, and mentorship.

FBF Parenting courses help raise client parenting skills, discover new and more effective ways of discipline, and bring clients home without a negative "prison mentality". The FBF Program includes soft skills training, OJT, and fieldwork reviews to help ensure FBF clients succeed as employees in their future positions.

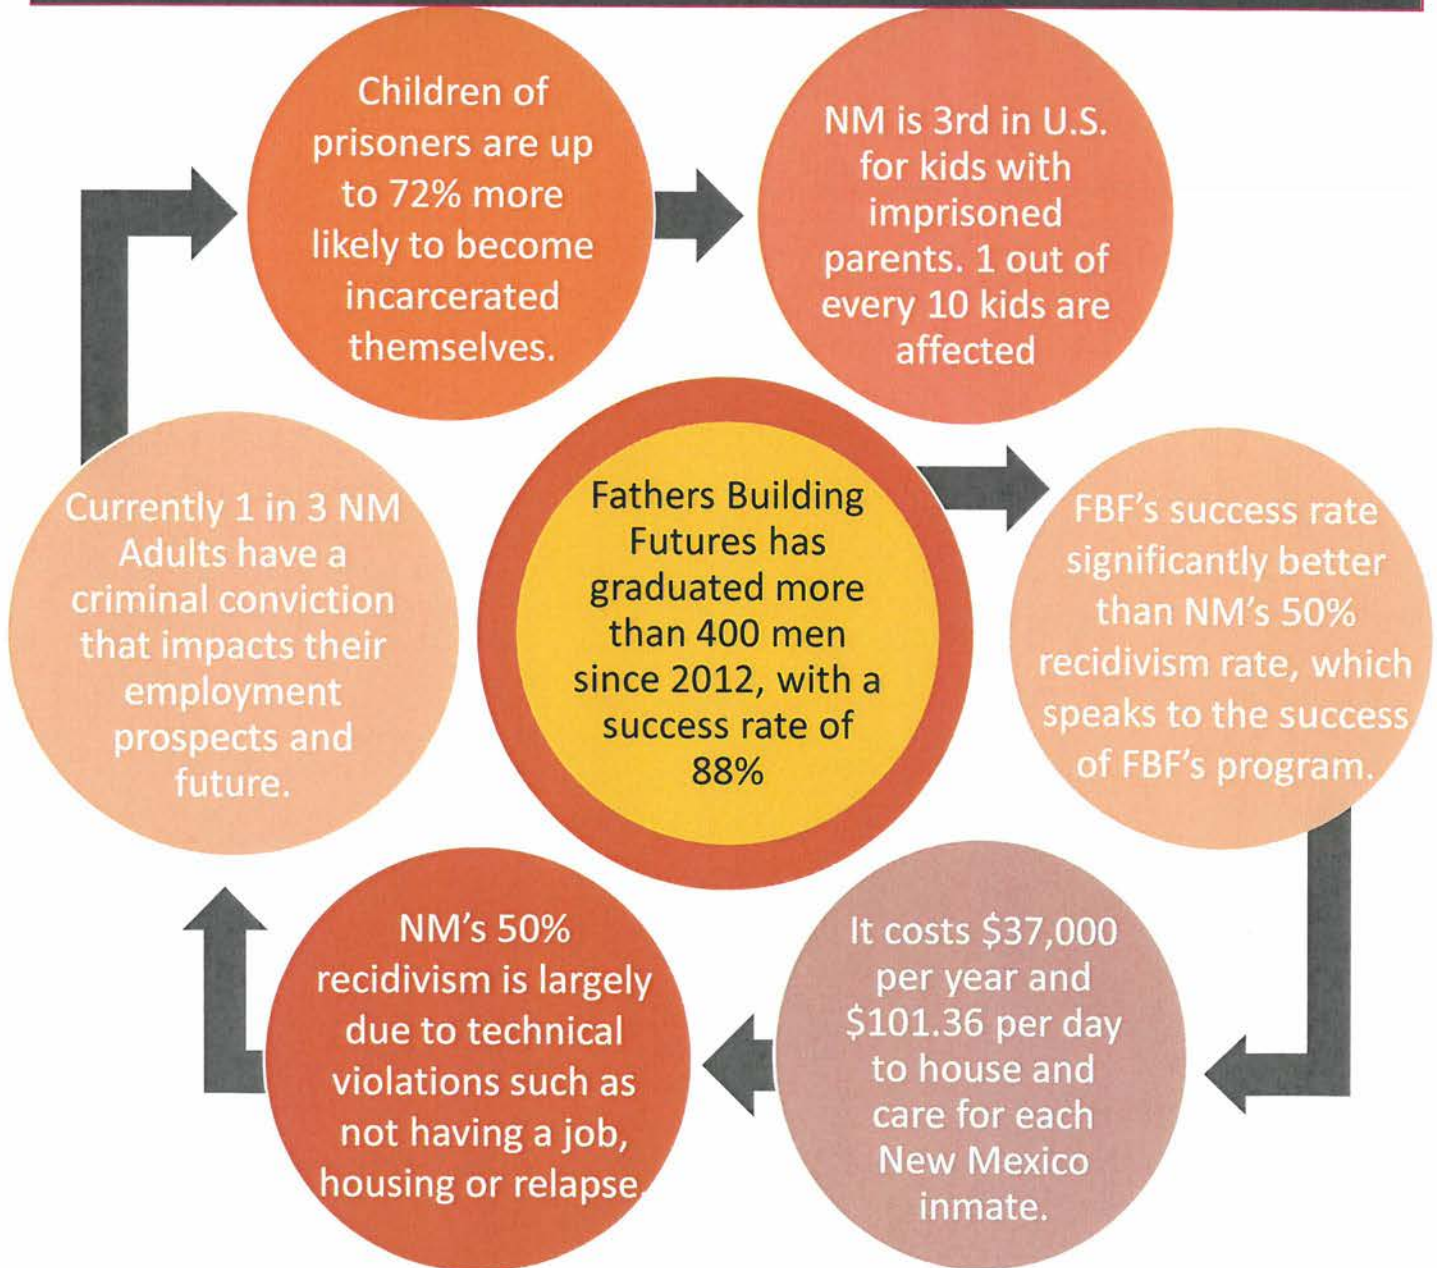

FBF’s Money Club includes, budgeting, banking, savings, debt reduction, credit building, and identity theft. This ten-week class will ensure the Fathers have the knowledge to manage a budget in their household, giving them financial stability but also other opportunities such as buying a home, education or starting a business.

FBF's Program has many positive impacts: Outcomes among our fathers include: 25% increased the amount of child support provided; 48% indicated their housing situation had improved; 50% more men filed a tax return.

FBF has recurring annual goals to keep us striving for 100% client job placement in sustainable, long-term employment for each graduate of the program.

Qualified fathers will get a chance at an IDA (assuming available funding) after participating in the financial literacy program. This enables fathers to purchase a home.
